God Moment

I was working with a couple who are coming back to the practice of their faith, and one of the suggestions I gave them was to pray with their children each night before they go to bed. The following email exchange followed a few weeks later. The mother wrote to me, "I wanted to also share with you that we have been praying with my son at night and he loves it. He now asks us to pray with him and it's a wonderful opportunity to share with him the things we are grateful for and vice versa. So, thank you!" I replied, "Could I share your experience with your son and you praying without using your names?" Mom replied, "Yes you can. He loves praying! He asks to pray every night. It's the cutest thing on the planet. Turns out he's grateful for way more than we thought. \odot " I cannot help but think of what Jesus savs in Matthew 21:16, "Out of the mouths of infants and nurslings you have brought forth praise?"

WELCOMING, HOSPITALITY AND THE CHANCE TO ENTERTAIN ANGELS

As Advent and Christmas are upon us, we have an opportunity to practice radical hospitality in our parish as a way of welcoming the stranger, the seeker, and those contemplating a return to the Church.

All parishioners of St. Raymond are a natural part of the welcoming ministry team. Each Mass where any two or three (or three hundred!) of us are gathered is a chance for us to show the love of Jesus through our presence and actions to those immediately around us, including some who may not know Him.

Let's challenge ourselves this Advent and Christmas to make our parish of St. Raymond as warm and welcoming as possible by smiling more, perhaps offering our seat to someone, introducing ourselves to someone we have not met before, or by saying a lovely "Hello, have a wonderful Sunday, God bless!" Remember: "Do not neglect hospitality, for through it some have unknowingly entertained angels." (Hebrews 13:2)

As part of the Welcoming Ministry Team here at St. Raymond, I personally invite anyone who feels called to further action to join me in finding more concrete ways to create an atmosphere of welcome and a sense of belonging for those who may be visiting us, especially during the Advent and Christmas seasons. Currently we are looking for team members who may have the charism of welcoming and hospitality. I look forward to meeting you!

SUNFLOWERS! THANK GOD!

BY BR. DAVID WOO, O.P.

(November 25, 2020) Harvest festivals, like our American Thanksgiving, are found all over the world. From Korean Chuseok to Jewish Succoth, many farming societies developed rituals to mark the end of the harvest season, often with large parties and tons of good food.

Spain has numerous local and regional festivities for the harvest season, which I am includes awesome sure parties. However, most of their harvests (and parties) had already happened by the late summer when I had walked the Camino Santiago. And so, I passed acres and acres of brown and empty fields. But one crop that was still unharvested was the sunflower.

These bright yellow flowers orient themselves toward the sun as it travels from horizon to horizon. They physically turn themselves to maximize their absorption of the sun's beams. I was grateful to see these bright yellow streaks amidst the Meseta's monotonous stretches of brown fallow land.

From sunflowers, we can learn two lessons: we should orient ourselves more fully to the Son, and be a bright spot amidst barren stretches of land. As St. Paul writes, be "perfect in holiness...whole and entire, spirit, soul, and body, irreproachable at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." (1 Thessalonians 5:23) We can orient ourselves towards the Son and refresh those around us by being grateful.

Gratitude is incredibly profound. It simultaneously turns us towards God and brightens the landscape around us by making us holy. We humble ourselves when we are thankful because we recognize that we have received something. We open ourselves and become aware of the good that is in our lives: a bright field of sunflowers, an iridescent rainbow, the happy gurgling of an infant, the antics of a

SUNDAY READINGS

November 21, 2021 (Our Lord Jesus Christ, King of the Universe) Daniel 7:13-14 / Psalms 93:1-2, 5 / Revelation 1:5-8 / John 18:33b-37 bible.usccb.org/bible/readings/112121.cfm

November 28, 2021 (First Sunday of Advent) Jeremiah 33:14-16 / Psalms 25:4-5, 8-10, 14 / 1 Thessalonians 3:12-4:2 / Luke 21:25-28, 34-36 bible.usccb.org/bible/readings/112821.cfm rambunctious 2-year-old, the warm voice of an old friend, a particularly striking skyscraper, or a hot coffee on a cold morning. With practice, we can see in more incredible ways the sublimity of God. When we open ourselves to the wonder of God's creation, we can see the bright patches of yellow in the seemingly barren world around us. All it takes is a moment of turning ourselves to our Creator and show others the glory of God that we see and hear.

When we practice gratitude, it affects those around us. As we become more open, we can cause a chain reaction: people see, and they, in turn, open themselves up. When we turn towards God, it inevitably turns us towards our neighbors and makes us reach out in goodwill to pay forward what we have received.

In this pandemic, loneliness and isolation are a significant struggle for many of us and make it difficult to see the good around us. Despite this, we can redouble our efforts and practice the virtue of gratitude, recognizing that God continuously showers his gifts upon us through our lives and those around us. We need to be like the sunflower and turn towards God and show others the good around us. This year's Thanksgiving celebrations may be quite different from what we are used to. but let's strive to be open amidst the challenges. We may not have grand parties with tons of good food right now, but we have a greater hope in the future, in the greatest of parties: in our eternal reward. We will celebrate the greatest of all harvests. Let's be grateful for that. ⊕

FAITH-FILLED NEWS FROM COP-26

Our first two readings for this feast depict communities undergoing persecution by foreign powers. Each reading is meant to offer hope, courage, and consolation to suffering communities, and to assure them that God will triumph in the end. The author of Revelation, John, sees Jesus as "the Son of Man" described by Daniel: true God and true human who gave his life for the world. The Jesus of John's gospel has a kingdom not of the world of greed, violence, and dishonesty. Rather, it is the kingdom of self-giving, care for others, and witness to the truth.

If you've been following the news from Glasgow, you know that thousands of ordinary people from all faiths gathered to express their concerns about climate change to the world leaders meeting in Glasgow, Scotland, for COP (Community of Partners) 26. Thousands of Catholics from all over the world stood with partners of other faiths to advocate for Creation Care and climate change mitigation.

We don't know what final actions and commitments were made. Climate experts say we are at a critical point. Only quick, significant steps toward reducing reliance on fossil fuels, elimination of methane and CO2 emissions, halting of deforestation and other measures will save the planet from a 2 degree increase in temperature, a situation scientists say will have disastrous effects on our planet's landscapes and weather patterns.

On this Feast of Christ the King of the Universe, let us remember that "His dominion is an everlasting dominion that shall not be taken away, his kingship shall not be destroyed."

But we must be the voice and hands and servants of this King, and act now to protect His dominion and His people.

"I bring a message from the poor adversely affected by climate change. Global warming and extreme weather patterns are making it difficult for people to survive. I come here asking everyone to act now to save the planet and save the lives and livelihoods of people in Southern Africa and other lessdeveloped countries." - Fr. Leonard Chiti, S.J., Provincial, Southern African Jesuits

From the Dominican community:

Ours is a sacramental vision of the creation. All comes from God, All somehow bears the imprint of its divine origin, it all comes into being through the Son, it all speaks to us of its origin; we come to appreciate its plan through our faith in the Son who has entered the creation as one of us, and we look forward not to the creation being abandoned but brought to its perfection in Christ the King of the universe. https://dominicanpublications.com

VISION STATEMENT St. Raymond Parish is a family. As disciples of Jesus, we are "children of God" and "brothers and sisters in Christ." Jesus himself says, "Whoever does the will of my Father in heaven is my brother, and sister, and mother" (Matthew 12:50). We welcome all to belong to our Catholic family and to inherit with us in Christ the mission to preach the Gospel as we pray-serve-socialize in His Name.

MISSION STATEMENT St. Raymond Parish is a community united by our Catholic Faith as disciples of Jesus Christ. We seek communion with God the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit through ongoing personal and communal conversion to Christ and a deeper commitment to the mission Jesus gives each of us to preach the Gospel. The sacred scriptures and sacraments of the Church sustain us. We dedicate ourselves to Truth and strive to grow in love of God and neighbor as we pray -serve-socialize together, and work by grace to build up in one another and share freely with others the abundance of magnificent gifts God has given.
